

The Bloomfield Record.

OFFICE TO BROAD ST.
ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Local Communications, Advertisements, etc., especially solicited. A free medium of local information. It also gives all the news of local importance, and to discuss all subjects fearlessly and impartially, giving its readers as full freedom of opinion as it claims for itself, extending only to the most reliable and trustworthy personal attacks or insinuations, and only of advertisements of doubtful utility. All who appreciate and are willing to sustain a local paper conducted upon these principles are asked to become subscribers.

S. MORRIS HULLS,

Louis McNair, while going along Benson Street last Saturday night, was stopped near the Chestnut Hill station by two men who, after asking for the time, demanded money. McNair put his hand in his pocket as if to get it, but instead pulled out a large knife and made a lunge at the highwaymen. They made such haste to get out of the way that one of them stumbled and fell. He was up again in an instant and escaped.

Four weeks yet remain during which the $295 Mason & Hamlin upright grand piano offered by the Pope Manufacturing Company of Hartford as a club prize may be contested for. The piano will be given to the club whose rider, mounted on a Columbia fitted with Hartford single tube tires, makes the best time in a twenty-five mile race prior to October 1st, and is undoubtedly the most valuable trophy ever offered in the competitive work by any manufacturer. September is a great month for road races, and the result of these contests will be watched with much interest, as almost every club in the country is striving for the prize and has a picked corps of riders in reserve with 1.00 or better up their sleeve.

LIST OF UNCLAIMED LETTERS

Consisting in the Post Office at Bloomfield, N. J., for the week ending Aug. 30, 1895.

Brown, Miss Carrie. Carter, Fredrick. Newman, E. R. Small, Hughie. Depue, Mrs. Geo. FRANK G. LOWEY, Postmaster.

Questions For Voters.

An even dozen of questions are to be put to the men who are to serve at the election on November 5th, by the County Board of Elections, before they will be allowed to serve.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the Board held in the Grand Jury room at the Court House, William R. Williams, the chairman, presided, and Leonard Kalisch acted as secretary. Edwin A. Bayner was the other member present, as Edward W. Jackson is out of the city.

The questions to be submitted to the appointees are: name, age, business, residence, street address, the name of the political party to which the aspirant belongs, and whether he is a legal voter, whether he ever served as an election officer; if so, how long; whether he has any knowledge of the present law; what opportunities of qualification he may have had; if he was ever convicted of any violation of the laws of the State or United States; and, if so, for what offense.

Post-Hallensleben.

Miss Florence Post, eldest daughter of Justice J. G. Post, was married on Wednesday evening to English Hallensleben of New York. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents on Liberty Street by the Rev. E. A. White, rector of Christ Episcopal Church. Miss Gussie Hallensleben, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and John T. Post, brother of the bride, was best man. The wedding was private on account of the serious illness of the bride's mother.

Jansen-Bollenbach.

A quiet home wedding was celebrated at the residence of J. A. Jansen, 221 Spruce Street, on Wednesday evening. The contracting parties were Miss Kristine Jansen, daughter of J. A. Jansen, and Jacob Bollenbach, Jr. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Jansen of Flatbush, a brother of the bride, assisted by the Rev. H. W. Seibert. Miss Bertha Erdman of Orange was the bridesmaid and J. A. Jansen, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. After a short wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Bollenbach will reside on New Street.

Obituary.

Domestic Arrangements in Chicago.

The inhabitants of Chicago note the least curious and observing people in the world. According to their own newspapers, they permitted one H. H. Holmes to construct in their city a house so extraordinary, so full of hidden doors and secret passages and said proof vats that it would have attracted thousands of curious visitors had it been built anywhere else. But the gullible Chicagoans suspect nothing. Neither the man who issued the building permit nor the men who did the building saw anything unusual about the house. What is the matter? Is all Chicago blind, or are acid proof vats and secret passages part and parcel of the ordinary Chicago dwelling? Perhaps there is an interesting chapter to be written about domestic architecture in Chicago.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Suicide of the Actor.

"Jamie," sharply called out his mother, "you've been leading all day. Satan always finds some work for idle hands to do. Take this basket and bring in some kindling."—Chicago Tribune.

The fool is always dead sure that his own way of doing things is the best, if not the only way, but the wise man wonders if there isn't a better way than the one he has adopted.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

Work Easily Performed in the Tenants of a Transient.

"Speaking of cinches," said the retired burglar, "the easiest, softest, smoothest any I ever struck was in a house in a small town in Rhode Island. There was a thunderstorm coming up, and just as I got there it began to sprinkle. By the time I'd got inside it was coming down pretty hard, and I was glad to be under shelter, for I hadn't brought any umbrella with me. I hadn't had any supper either, and when I got into the dining room I thought I'd get something to eat. The sideboard was locked and the key carried up stairs, but a little jimmy opened the door as easy as a knife would open a pie. I set out a little snack on the table and sat down and ate it comfortably, with the rain pouring down outside. It was all very simple. I knew nobody could sleep in that thunder. They'd be sure to be all awake, but here I was, and I hated to lose a night, and after I'd waited a little while the storm didn't show any signs of letting up I thought I'd go ahead and see anyhow. The very first room I looked into up stairs settled the whole business."

"But there was something I hadn't counted on. The thunder was roaring and plunging like a dozen earthquakes busting down through the sky, and it kept up house in a tremendous roar. I knew nobody could sleep in that thunder. They'd be sure to be all awake, but here I was, and I hated to lose a night, and after I'd waited a little while the storm didn't show any signs of letting up I thought I'd go ahead and see anyhow. The very first room I looked into up stairs settled the whole business."

"Over in one corner of this room, beyond a bed, I saw a woman standing in front of an open closet door. Two children hopped out of the bed, and the mother pushed them into the closet, and then crowded in herself and pulled the door shut tight. It was all very simple. Husband away, no help; two children sleeping in another room, woke up by thunder, came into their mother's room, all scared; mother puts children in closet and goes in herself, as lots of folks do in thunderstorms. And then I walk over and turn the key in the lock, and there you are. No danger of their coming out till the storm is over anyway, but just as well to be sure about it, and then I just quietly go through the house. It isn't big, and it doesn't take long, and I come back before the storm is over and unlock the closet door again and skip, and that's all there is to it."—New York Sun.
